Dear Al:

• Thank you for your letter of 20 October 1975. I appreciate very much your strong endorsement of my campaign to get better and more comprehensive tactical intelligence on the enemy out to the service schools and colleges and to our tactical commanders and troops. Your support will be invaluable in carrying my message to those councils where appropriate decisions can be made. Also very gratifying, not only to me personally but also to the folk in the Office of Strategic Research (OSR) who produced it, was your enthusiastic response to the research paper, "Flexibility in Soviet Offensive Concepts: The Role of Armor and Other Ground Forces." Incidentally, I have pursued the possibility of releasing this document as you requested and I am happy to report that CIA has consented. You may now use it as you see fit with our NATO allies. I have also been advised that copies of the paper have already been cleared for release to the BND.

I am exploring your suggestion to put increased emphasis on determining further details of Soviet tactical doctrine for lower fighting echelons, both armor and infantry. Apropos of this, I plan to visit Bill DePuy shortly after the first of the year to get his views and requirements. I will keep you informed of major developments as they occur.

I have received George Blanchard's response to the OSR paper. I was pleased to see that his ideas on tactical intelligence exploitation are very close to my own. He seems to have a very fine program for indoctrinating his commanders and troops. All he needs is more of the tactical intelligence support which we in the intelligence community should be providing him.

I shall be sending you shortly another research paper prepared by OSR titled, "Soviet Commentary on the Capabilities of U.S. General Purpose Forces: An Update." Unfortunately, the paper as presently written draws on sensitive sources and, therefore, will have to be sanitized before receiving the wider distribution it deserves. I believe you will find this interesting reading. I am sending copies also to Bill DePuy and George Blanchard.

Warm regards.

Sincerely,

/s/ Samuel V. Wilson
